Growing as Professionals: Translating Prior Work Experience into Relevant Skills for Success

Justin Beattey

Justin identifies as a person in recovery from mental health and substance use issues and the justice system. He has a long-standing business background prior to entering the behavioral health field where he has earned multiple peer support and treatment/clinical level credentials. Justin works alongside the behavioral health community to create, and strengthen, the behavioral health workforce and the organizations and communities that utilize their services. His dedication to education, support and advocacy with the 'any positive change' mentality to wellness allows all to feel included and supported. Justin continues to strive to support equitable access to resources and supports for all community members. Justin's motivation is to see efforts advance, and sustain, equitable and stable resources and supports for all.
