The National Call for Health Equity

“Racial and ethnic health inequities remain pervasive across most state health systems.

Achieving health equity is a critical goal for behavioral health services. Equal access to high quality and affordable behavioral health services and support is the right of all individuals, regardless of race, age, ethnicity, gender identity, disability, socioeconomic status, sexual orientation, sex characteristics, or geographical location. While this mountain may be a difficult one to climb, addressing health equity requires leadership, collaboration, and support for sustainability.”
